Q3. Several reasons have been given to explain economic insecurity and poverty in the UK today, including decisions made by individuals, such as spending more than earnings or lifestyle choices; new business and employment practices, such as zero-hours contracts, paying less than the Living Wage and the rise of 'gig' employment, and government policy, such as the introduction of Universal Credit and reductions to public spending. Which, if any, of the following do you think is most responsible for economic insecurity and poverty in the UK today?
